“DREAMS OF THE DREAMERS”

Great dreams of great dreamers are always transcended !

- A. P. J. Abdul Kalam

Dreams are very important in life. Until you see the dreams, you wouldn't get anything. There are people not only see the dreams but work hard to achieve those dreams. They become inspiration for many others. Here we are sharing the list of famous Indians who saw dreams and worked hard to achieve them. Whenever you doubt turning your dreams into reality remember that there are people amongst us who are living, breathing examples of those who have started small and made it big in their lives, through sheer hard work and determination. Hope their life will inspire you as well.

The successful life story of our Dreamers

I am Dhanalakshmi. Studying in class 10 in BBMP school. I would like to share my life that bloomed in the home Navajeevana.

In a small village my family consists of 6 members [mother, two elder sisters, one elder brother, one younger sister and myself] lived there. My mother was working for few years and managed to send all of us to nearby school but after some days she was sick and later diagnosed as cancer and was admitted in the Hospital for the further treatment. After few months she passed away and all the responsibilities were taken over by my elder sister. Seeing our pitiable condition our neighbour Priya brought us to Auxililum Navajeevana Street home. It is here that we all found a real home and the love that we lost in the course of our life which was filled with difficulties. Now, my elder sister studying in 2nd B.COM and the rest perceive in their studies. My dearm is to become an Architect.

Happiness is the key to Success,
If you love what your doing you will be Successfull

My Dream to be a Writer

As my Heart Surrenders, You become the other half of me. The first love within me rises like a sea tides,

As I watch it like a child. This feeling gave wings to my imagination.

As it flies skywards, my Dreams are stolen as the eyes cuddle and melt in its warmth. The moonlight hurts in the silver rain as I shine together with my Dream. The silence inside me has made my Dream into a Poem.

A shower of sacred water has touched my life and given a new breath.

This is the fundamental force which cannot be stopped by me, which will never leave me to achieve and reach my Dream.

Concealment of conscience is my heart's behavior, without knowing the language there is no script. Without achieving my Dream there is no value for my Life

The journey of my eyes stops on reaching you, what else remains to say?

I have said all that I wanted to say That my Dream is to become a WRITER

My Dream to be a Writer

Hai, I am Anitha, studying in II PUC. I would like to present my life in Navajeevana.

I am from a small village which is located in KGF and know for poverty, illiteracy, and unemployment. My poverty deprived me from my education and made me a servant in a house. There were many troubles and difficulties which led me to run away from home and so I was in the street.

Through the intervention of few people who saw me in a pathetic condition took me to C.W.C. From there I was send to Navajeevana. Since I did not know to read and write I was encouraged to do my Bridge course for two years. Along with it I learned tailoring, knitting, card making and also I developed my talents and did my schooling. Now I am in IIPUC.

I am very happy to stay in Navajeevana, because it gave me new life and in turn to know my abilities.

My dream is to study well, to get a good job and in turn to help Navajeevana which helped me.

I thank my God and my sisters who help me to reach my goal.

Now my only motivation is to study well and to become a teacher where I can help many more children like me.
